THERE'S NO ONE-SIZE FITS ALL WHEN IT COMES TO SOAR DEVELOPMENT

Security technologies create a large influx of information to sift through by already overworked security analysts. Unfortunately, when analysts become fatigued by the sheer volume of events to triage and analyze, it's easy for critical alerts to slip through the cracks.

Optimize security operations with Reveald's Security Orchestration, Automation, and Response (SOAR) development services.

SOAR combines data from a variety of sources, which often includes SIEM and threat intelligence feeds, to perform automated analysis or response actions for the more common event types. This enables valuable security experts to focus and respond to events that matter and in less time to reduce business disruptions.

SOAR is not a replacement for human expertise or even a plug and play solution. Rather, SOAR collects and automates common threat responses to larger data sets and takes time to develop well thought out use cases to address standard workflows and playbooks.

Reveald delivers the foundational elements that will enable your SOC to develop future use cases.
